

A series of horizontal gray lines spanning the width of the page, arranged in two groups of six lines each. The first group is located in the upper middle section, and the second group is located in the lower middle section. These lines are intended for writing text.